

Bahaa-Eddin M. Mazid, Professor of Linguistics and Translation, Acting Dean Faculty of Languages, Sohag University, Egypt, Formerly, Assistant Professor, Department of Translation Studies, UAE University; Ph.D. (Discourse Analysis and Pragmatics), 1999; MA (Language Acquisition and Contrastive Pragmatics), 1995; MA in Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL); has taught language, linguistics and translation in Egypt, KSA and UAE, done consultancy and teacher training work for the Fulbright Commission and the Academy of Educational Development, won many regional awards for writing in Arabic, and contributed to regional and international conferences and journals on linguistics, translation, and TEFL; current research interests include pragmatics, stylistics, translation studies, pragma-linguistics of virtual communities and critical discourse analysis.

Endorsement

"Dr. Mazid is one of the few linguists anywhere with such an amazing range of talent in both Arabic and English linguistics, including stylistics and language variation. He has my highest praise and recommendation as a scholar, colleague in the same college at the same university, and author" (The late Professor Alan S. Kaye, communication with LINCOM Europa, 2007)