

Dr Giuseppina Di Gregorio is an English Adjunct Professor/Lecturer at the University of Catania (Economics and Business Department), where she teaches several undergraduate and graduate courses of English Language. She held a Ph D in English and Anglo-American Studies, with a thesis about Neo-Victorian Novels (about the novels of C. Priest and P. Ackroyd). She wrote a book entitled State of Soul – L'immaginario di D. H. Lawrence in The Study of Thomas Hardy. She is a peer reviewer for Victorian Network and the International Journal of Multicultural Education, and a reviewer for Victoriographies, The European English Messenger – ESSE; she worked as a contributor for Victorian Bibliography - Indiana University and annotator for Routledge ABES. Moreover, she is a member of the Scientific Committee of Agorà & Co., Lugano. She is a member of EST – European Society for Translation Studies; VPFA – Victorian Popular Fiction Association; FATHOM – French Association for Thomas Hardy Studies; BAVS – British Association for Victorian Studies; AIA – Associazione Italiana Anglisti.

Her research interests include Victorian Studies (especially Victorian novels), Postmodern Biofictions, Translation Studies, Didactics and English for Specific Purposes (Business English).