

Jacqueline Laguardia Martínez (Havana, 1976).

PhD on Economics by the University of Havana, M.Sc. on International Economics by the University of Havana and M.Sc. on Economic Policy Management by the University of Auvergne. Majors on Economics, History and Cultural Studies by the University of Havana.

Dr. Laguardia Martínez's work experience includes being Associate Professor at the University of Havana (Economic History and International Economy) and Researcher Associate at the Cuban Institute for Cultural Research "Juan Marinello", where she conducted research on cultural economy and creative industries, especially the Cuban publishing industry.

She was also the founder and first Director of the Cuban Observatory for Books and Reading at the Cuban Book Institute. She has participated in various academic events held in Cuba, United States, Canada, Mexico, Colombia, Brazil, and Trinidad and Tobago among other nations.

She has several publications in Cuban and international journals, as well as contributions in books published in Cuba and other Latin American countries.

Currently Dr. Laguardia Martínez is Lecturer at the Institute of International Relations at UWI, St. Augustine.