

Dr. Masoud Rafighi was born in Tehran, Iran on 1983/08/10. He receives PHD degree in Information Technology engineering from Qom University. He receives M.Sc degree in computer engineering software from Azad University North Tehran Branch, Tehran, IRAN. He has recently been active in software engineering and has developed and taught various software related courses for the Institute and university for Advanced Technology, the University of Iran. His research interests are in software measurement, software complexity, requirement engineering, maintenance software, software security and formal methods of software development. He has written a book on software complexity engineering and published many papers