

Ms. Tatiana-Camelia Dogaru is assistant professor within Faculty of Public Administration, National University (School) of Political Studies and Public Administration in Romania. She was born in 1984 and in 2008 she graduated Public Administration Faculty and Law Faculty in 2014. In 2012 she received the PhD degree in Administrative Sciences from National University of Political Studies and Public Administration.

Her special fields of interest included policy-making, European policies, decision-making, rational choice theory, research methodology in administrative sciences. She is author and co-author of several books, and over 25 papers in the area of policy-making and public administration, published in national and international journals and conference proceedings indexed in international data bases. Also, she has been member in few projects on interdisciplinary research (impact of crisis measures, system of indicators on the impact of measures to combat corruption, mechanisms and streamline the rational allocation of public resources curriculum development).