

Dr. Noura Anwar Abdelfattah

She has over 15 years of experience in scientific research and data analysis in many fields; of them, demography, social science, biostatistics and mathematical statistics. She is currently working as an assistant professor in the Faculty of Graduate Studies in Statistical Researches, Cairo University. She teaches Meta-Analysis, Basic and Advanced Biostatistics, Methods for Assessment of Family Planning Programs, Family Planning and Related Topics, Regression Analysis in Population Studies, Statistical Methods in Demography, Migration and Urbanization, Data Sources and Quality of Data, Multilevel Analysis, Multivariate Analysis, Statistical Analysis Using SPSS.

As a freelancer, she is currently acting as a consultant for UNICEF implementing a project for building the capacities of researchers of the formal statistical office of Egypt namely Central Agency for Public mobilization and Statistics, CAPMAS.

Meanwhile, she is currently acting as consultant for IOM in an assignment that is devoted for developing the first migration bulletin of Egypt.

She has been the principle investigator in many national projects, the latest one was concerned with carrying out a Market Assessment for the Graduation Initiative in Upper Egypt for Sawiris Foundation for Social Development “SFSD” and Abdullatif Jameel Poverty Action Lab “JPAL” during 2018/2019. This project is concerned with conducting a comprehensive market analysis in the poorest villages of Assuit and Sohag, to inform the design and the implementation of a potential program.