

Noa Benvenisty

Born in Haifa, Israel, Noa is a graduate student from the Master's Course in Planning and Management of Tourism Systems at the University of Bergamo (2018). Her final dissertation has dealt with Maritime Heritage of Mediterranean destinations, in particular Malta, Santorini and Haifa. Her research focuses on Mediterranean culture and heritage, sustainable development of marine communities and urban change in the Mediterranean Basin. Recently, at the Athens Mediterranean Conference (April 2019), she presented a paper on Marsaxlokk Fishing Port in Malta and its local fishing community. Noa currently is an independent researcher at the University of Bergamo.