

Panagiota Bleta, MBA, is a Research Fellow at the Athens Institute (A World Association of Academics & Researchers) and author of 21 books and numerous articles on global economy, politics, philosophy, social development, and environmental issues.

She has served as Professor at public and private Vocational Training Institutes (SAEK, KEK) and has participated in various academic and policy initiatives promoting sustainable governance and civic engagement.

Beyond academia, she has held executive positions including Procurement Manager at the Hellenic Cadastre, Development Agent and Franchisee of Subway Restaurants in the Attica Region, President & Managing Director of G.P.O. S.A., and Subcontractor of Kapa Research S.A.—establishing national call centres for public services such as the Earthquake Victims' Information Line (0800-18000) and the Citizens Service Line (1464).

She has also served in local government as Deputy Mayor of Chalandri, where she established Greece's first Citizens' Service Centre, and as Candidate Prefect of Laconia, contributing to the effective utilisation of EU development funds in the region. Her interdisciplinary background reflects a lifelong commitment to ethical governance, education, and humanistic progress.