

Manuela-Elena Concioiu is an educational specialist, a first-degree Biology teacher in the Romanian educational system, a PhD candidate at the National School of Political Studies and Administration of Bucharest, in the Department of International Relations and European Studies.

She studied Biology and Ecology in two Bachelor Degrees and a Master Degree in Monitoring and Environmental Engineering at the Ecological University of Bucharest, Romania and two postgraduate courses on Human Resources and Management and Educational Leadership. In 2006 she was a Socrates-Erasmus student at the Faculty of Bioscience Engineering Ghent, Belgium, with a focus on Aquaculture and the Environment. As a teacher, she was a member of the Biology Consultative Council in the Scholar Inspectorate of Bucharest, from 2015 to 2019.

She was an intern in the educational field at the European Public Law Organization Greece, where she took two intensive courses provided by The European Law and Governance School (ELGS), Comparative Law and Global Governance (2018), and Biolaw and Biotechnology: The Crossroads of Science and Regulation (2021).

Her expertise is on project design and implementation, focused on Erasmus+ and private grants for more than 10 years, with numerous specializations as a project manager and trainer on formal and non-formal education. She worked with various organizations and educational institutions across Europe, from Germany, Greece, Italy, Latvia, Malta, Portugal, Poland, Romania, Spain.

She is author of several articles on topics like Biology, Education, Biotechnology and in vitro propagation, project management and she published 2 books (Maples in Garden Landscaping - Uses and in Vitro Propagation Techniques. Title in Romanian. 2021; Gymnasium National Evaluation - Preparation Guide, Mathematics and Natural Sciences. Title in Romanian. 2016, 2020 (eBook)).

She loves nature and education and she encourages learning from one another and as a result of all the projects where multiculturalism and diversity are the key words, the title of her PhD thesis is EU Diversity Management of Educational Policies, promoting education in the spirit of sustainable development, in accordance with personal values: share experience and cooperate, inspire and get inspired, motivate and educate.