

Alina-Andreea Dragoescu (married Urlica) is a qualified teacher of English as a Foreign Language (EFL) and English for Specific Purposes (ESP) at the USAMVB “King Michael I of Romania” in Timisoara, Romania. She has been teaching languages for 14 years and has a PhD in Philology (American Cultural Studies) from the University of the West in Timisoara. Her expertise includes general English and several areas of ESP, such as English for Agriculture, English for Farm Management, English for Genetic Engineers, English for Life Sciences, etc. She was an editor and contributor to the Journal of Linguistic Studies, RJAS, and other academic journals published within the USAMVB Timisoara. Her interests include applied linguistics, the terminology and semiotics of ecology, and ecolinguistics, which have provided topics for over 30 academic papers and 4 university textbooks for the use of students within the BUASVM of Timisoara. She has participated in several international projects (Cambridge - UK, Madrid & Valencia - Spain, Giresun & Canakkale - Turkey).