

Biography of Dr. Sandra M. Harris

Dr. Sandra M. Harris is the Assessment Director for the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at Walden University. She received her PhD in Educational Psychology and MED in School Psychometry from Auburn University. Dr. Harris has expertise in quantitative, qualitative, and mixed methods research. Her area of expertise is survey design, development, and validation. She also has an extensive background in assessment. Her research interests include mentoring, assessment, self-regulated learning, and adult learners. She has a record of scholarly accomplishments which includes 20 publications and over 75 presentations at professional conferences. Dr. Harris has a substantial record of scholarship in mentoring others. She has been a committee chair or committee member on over 125 theses and dissertations. She is actively engaged in the scholarly community as she serves as reviewer and editor for several organizations. She can be reached at sandra.harris@waldenu.edu or drsmharris@elmore.rr.com.