

Ignacio García Peña was born in Salamanca in 1982. He got his BA in Philosophy (2004) as well as his PhD (2009) at the University of Salamanca. Currently, he is a Professor in the Philosophy, Logic and Aesthetics Department at the same University since 2010. His areas of interest and research are related to Ancient and Greek Philosophy but also with the Spanish philosopher Miguel de Unamuno. He has published several papers and books on different aspects of Plato's thought, but also on Hellenistic philosophy.

He has taught a great variety of subjects from History of Philosophy, Introduction to Philosophy to Ancient and Medieval philosophical texts or Education for citizenship.

He is a member of the Research Project "Philosophy of Pain" and is working on several articles and books such as a Spanish translation and edition of Crito and Apology by Plato.