

Short CV notice of Jerzy Ladysz, Ph.D, Eng.

Dr. Jerzy Ladysz is an urban planner and economist. He is assistant professor at the Department of Urban Planning and Settlement Processes of the Wrocław University of Science and Technology (Poland). He is also assistant professor at the Department of Enterprise Studies of the Wrocław University of Economics and Business. He specializes in land-use planning, modeling and optimization of the location of service and infrastructure facilities, forecasting of the financial and economic effects of land-use plans, territorial cohesion and cross-border functional areas. He is an author of more than one hundred scientific publications. He is a contractor of several national and international research projects. He is official reviewer of research grants in Poland and EU. He has received many awards both for his teaching and research achievements. Dr. Ladysz is trilingual (Polish-English-Russian).

6.08.2020 Jerzy Ladysz