

Natasha Johnson Bio

Natasha Johnson has been a career educator since 2001. Her journey began in New York City as a middle school science teacher, followed by a number of years as a MS & high school math teacher. Thereafter, she earned her M.S.Ed. in School & Guidance Counseling from Brooklyn College and she subsequently became a HS guidance counselor. Shortly thereafter, she spent several years as a counselor and instructor at the community college level. She earned her Ed.S. in Instructional Leadership from the University of Tennessee in 2015. Currently, she is a doctoral student in the Educational Policy Studies Department at Georgia State University in Atlanta, GA where she also serves as a graduate recruiting assistant (GRA). Mrs. Johnson's research interests include educational justice/equity/equality, social justice leadership, curriculum development, and critical race and feminist theories.