

Arnel E. Joven is Assistant Professor in the History Department of the University of Asia and the Pacific. He is currently the Chair of the History Department and the Director of the Korean Studies Program. He finished his doctorate in History from the University of the Philippines, specialising in the history of medicine and health care in the Philippines during the Japanese Occupation Period. Since 2010, he has presented relevant papers on the health during the occupation period, in various international conferences. He has also published articles on history of medicine in various journals and as a book chapter contributor. Apart from History of Medicine Dr. Joven is also specialising in medical anthropology focusing on health phenomenology and political economy. He is currently undertaking research projects on health perceptions in Japan and Korea. In 2012, he obtained a grant from Asia-Phil for which he conducted a year-long research on Health and Medical Practices in Japan. In 2014, he obtained a grant from the Academy of Korean Studies, for which he conducted a research on Contemporary Health and Medical Practices in Korea. In 2017, Dr. Joven has been appointed as World Association for Hallyu Studies (WAHS) second regional president for Southeast Asia. Dr. Joven is currently working on Hallyu in Korea-Japan Relations, Hospitals and Health Care in Post-311 Japan, and Modern Thai Medical History.