

Dr. William Patrick Leonard serves as Executive Vice Dean SolBridge International School of Business in Daejeon, Korea. He holds a Ph.D. in Educational Communication from the University of Pittsburgh, MBA Loyola University of Chicago and MS in Ed and BS in Ed from Indiana University, Bloomington. He has served in an array of senior academic leadership posts—dean library and learning resources and associate provost Chicago State University, vice chancellor Purdue University North Central, campus executive dean Boyce Campus, Allegheny County Community College, president Morton College and Consulting Commissioner Commission for Academic Accreditation. He has continued to teach undergraduate and graduate business courses throughout his career. Leonard has served in Guatemala, Germany, United Arab Emirates and in Korea since 2009. His research interest focuses on assessment/accreditation, economics, governance and policy issues in higher education. His 200 plus essays and reviews have appeared in an array of professional journals including—University World News, IAU Horizons, Business Library Review, Economics Journal Watch, Economics of Education Review and others.