

Maria Eugenia Cruset is an historian specializing in International Relation with particular focus in diasporas and migration. She is a professor at La Plata University and Católica La Plata University in Argentina and Vasco de Quiroga in Mexico. She taught as well as lectured in many universities from Chile, Brazil, Mexico, Ireland and Spain.

She is chair in the “Irish Lecture” in La Plata University and director of the “Migration network” in Santiago de Chile University. She has published 3 books and over twenty articles.

Cruset was awarded by Begoña Aretxaga from the Nevada University, USA.

Currently her research includes transnational migration and diasporas strategies, and Peace Processes.