

Brief Biography

Dr. Marsela Sako, graduated from the Panteion University of Social and Political Sciences in Athens/Greece, with a Bachelor's degree in Political Science and History.

After having completed the studies in Bachelor, she received a second level Master's in "Sociology-Philosophy" from University of Tirana/Albania.

She received her PhD degree from University of Tirana/Albania in "Diplomacy and International Relations of European Union". Her work was focused on the politics of the European Union toward immigrants, with the main focus on Albanian immigrants in Greece.

She speaks fluently Greek and English languages. Her publications include articles on various subjects in the fields of "International Relations and Conflict Resolution".

From 2004 to present, she works as a full time lecturer in the Department of Political Science/ Faculty of Social Science, at the University of Tirana. She has worked as a part-time lecturer at the Albanian University and the Marin Barleti University, in Albania.

Dr. Marsela Sako has been a visiting professor at the "Drexel" University, in Philadelphia (USA), and at the "Alexandru Ioan Cuza" University of Iasi, Rumania.

She has experience as a coordinator also as a lecturer at a number of training courses. Currently, is appointed as a regular reviewer of Journal of Educational and Social Research, and of Mediterranean Journal of Social Sciences, published by Mediterranean Center of Social and Educational Research in Rome, Italy.