

Personal Bio

Mariam Nemsadze is a doctor of philology (Classics) at Akaki Tsereteli State University, Kutaisi, Georgia where she teaches Classics. Her dissertation concerns: “The Factor of Fear and Resentment in Ancient Drama”. Her research interests center on Classics, English Language and culture. In 2006 – 2010 she got her Bachelor’s degree at English language and Literature. In 2010 -2012 she got her Master’s Degree at English Language and Literature and in 2013-2016 she got a Phd at Classical Philology. Her working experience focuses on teaching ancient languages (Greek, Latin), literature and English language. She has been member of The Classical Association (registered in England No. 313371) and of ETAG (English Language Teachers Association of Georgia). She is member of the editorial board of the peer-reviewed International Journal of English and Cultural Studies and is Member of the Editorial board of the peer-reviewed international interdisciplinary scientific journal “AgroNews”. She is also an international reviewer of the International Journal of Languages, Literature and Linguistics and for the Athens Journal of Philology, of the Athens Institute for Education and Research (ATINER). She has presented papers in national and international conferences and has attended various international and regional academic events.