

PROFILE OF DR ROSAMUND THOMAS
Ph D, Master of Arts (Cambridge), Master of Social Science,
Postgraduate Diploma in Social Policy and Administration

Dr Rosamund Thomas is Director of Centre for Business and Public Sector Ethics, Cambridge, UK: see www.ethicscentre.org. She is an expert in Government Ethics, Corporate Social Responsibility, and Business Ethics. Dr Thomas read these subjects at the University of Birmingham (UK); Harvard University to doctoral and postdoctoral levels (USA); and taught at the London School of Economics and Political Science (1978-83).

In 1983 she accepted a Senior Research Fellowship in the Faculty of Law of the University of Cambridge, before becoming in 1988 Director of the independent Centre for Business and Public Sector Ethics. Dr Thomas has given evidence and Conference assignments to distinguished bodies globally, and is also a well-known author, and editor. Her published books include "Business Ethics and Corporate Social Responsibility: Cambridge-Gourlay-Trinity Lectures" (2015); "Corporate Governance and Anti-Bribery" (2013); ed. Business Ethics (2011); The British Philosophy of Administration; Espionage and Secrecy: The Official Secrets Acts 1911-1989 of the United Kingdom (to be republished by Routledge in 2016); ed. Government Ethics; ed. Environmental Ethics; and a chapter on 'Business Ethics' in the book Corporate Social Responsibility (Kluwer, 2nd edn. 2010). Rosamund Thomas has also published many articles and papers.

Dr Thomas has originated five Modules on 'Ethics and Anti-Corruption', available in DVD and video formats, published in association with Centre for Business and Public Sector Ethics. She is willing to undertake further advisory/consultancy assignments globally on request and gave evidence to the earlier US Ethics Law Reform Commission. Dr Thomas has been listed in the US publication 'Who's Who in the World' from 2004-2016 for her contribution to the betterment of contemporary society.