GENERAL BIO:

Thomas Corbin is an attorney and an educator with two decades of experience teaching and practicing law in five countries on four continents. His work in the classroom, at institutions administratively and in research areas has been noted as excellent and earned him teacher of the year nominations as well as ultimately a promotion to the status of Associate Professor. Thomas is also a member of the Michigan Bar Association and has been asked to comment in forums and podcasts about matters including but not limited to international law, globalism, international education, and the future of international business. Thomas is also a regular contributor to scholarly journals including the Journal of Business Ethics Education and the Michigan Bar Journal. Thomas has also been invited to sit on ATINER Academic Council. In his free time, Thomas is an avid Detroit Tigers Baseball fan, loves Batman and considers travel an essential to a full life.
