

Henry Thompson is an Emeritus Professor at Auburn University. His specialist fields are international economics and trade theory. His research published in 130 articles ranks in the top 2% to 10% in Research Papers in Economics with an h-index of 7. See his vita for details. He has given 66 university seminars and 85 presentations at professional meetings. His textbook International Economics is in its 4th edition. He is an honorary and founding member of the International Economics and Finance Society. He serves as a referee for various journals, has chaired 18 PhD dissertations and 16 MS theses, and is a consultant in energy economics. He received his PhD in 1981 from the University of Houston under the late Roy Ruffin. He spends time in Greece with his artist wife Madeline Simos and at the Universities of Athens and Peloponnese.