

Biography

Dr Stavroula Varella has a PhD in Linguistics from the University of Sussex. Having taught at various universities in the UK, she has most recently been a lecturer at the School of Education, Communication and Society, King's College London. She has written and presented on language and culture contact in the Eastern Mediterranean, the nomenclature of mental health, and the critical, creative, and pedagogic implications of the interface between linguistic and literary studies. Her books include Language Contact and the Lexicon in the History of Cypriot Greek (Peter Lang 2006) and (with Susan Lavender) Grammar in Literature: A Practical Guide (Palgrave Macmillan 2022).