

Ivy Yeung, JD, MBA, MPA is a Faculty at the University of Hawaii at Manoa. She works closely with global partners to further the development of candidates through culturally responsive, place-based instruction. Ivy has over 15 years of experience in international cooperation and partnerships. She instructs and serves as Director of Operations in PACMED and Principal Investigator for BEd programs in American Samoa. PACMED is a Master's in Education (MEd) degree with a Pacific and STEM focus. PACMED candidates remain leaders in their communities while working towards their degree. PACMED has hundreds of candidates across Hawaii, American Samoa, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, and Palau. It is a rewarding experience to serve these communities and work closely with dedicated educators across the Pacific. Research interests include culturally responsive education and legal issues such as citizenship rights in the Pacific.
