- Please click here for our policy.
- If need arises (never happened in our 30 years of existence), please be prepared to present without any support that modern technologies provides and all require electricity such as microphones, PowerPoints etc. Think of yourself as a synchronous Socrates who was lecturing without any such support; he required only a room, some good food and good wine or think of yourself like the father of history Herodotus, who was teaching the Athenian youth under the Parthenon in the open space under the blue sky of Athens.

Please note that more information will be available and uploaded closer to the conference dates
